Frog Kissing

by Ray Stevens, originally recorded by Chet Atkins, 1957

You remember in the fairy tale how a wicked witch's spell turned a handsome prince to a toad Through the power of a potion she handed him the notion he was lower than the dirt on the road Though she left him green and warted, her evil plan was thwarted when there chanced to happen by a young miss, who despite his complexion, offered her affection and broke the wicked spell with a kiss chorus

And if you've never been frog kissing, you don't know what you've been missing There's a world of opportunity under each and every log And if you've never been a charm breaker, if you've never been a handsome prince maker, slow down, turn around, bend down and kiss you a frog

Once upon a time ago, I was down and feeling low, like a lonely little frog in a pond
Life was just a joke, I very nearly croaked, I was zapped by life's wicked wand
In the depths of my depression, there came a true expression, of love from a woman so sweet, she gave me warm fuzzy neat, feelings that were healing and knocked me off my little webbed feet

There's a happy ever-ever land within the heart of everyone, where a future prince or princess abides, but all we get are glimpses of future princes or princesses cause they're covered with a green warty hide
Though they're full of life's potential, they're lacking one essential, to enable them to shine like a star, that's for some guy or misses, to cover them with kisses and love them just the way that they are
