

EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE FOR SUCCESS.

A Two Day Interactive Seminar

with David Cory, M.A.

Emotional Intelligence Foundations and Applications

Research shows that Emotional Intelligence is a strong predictor of workplace performance (Journal of Organizational Behavior, June 2010). Emotional Intelligence skills are also highly correlated with success in life - that is making your life what you want it to be, including improved communication and relationships.

Learn how Emotional Intelligence skills can help you achieve the success and satisfaction you are looking for in your work and in your life. Join David Cory, master trainer, as he engages you in games, activities, and discussion designed to increase your knowledge and skills, in a fun and enjoyable way, which will help make you more effective at work, help you deal with stress and difficult situations, and improve your communication skills for better relationships with others.

What You Can Expect

- » To learn how Emotional Intelligence forms the foundation of all other skills
- » To understand how and why EI is critical to effective workplaces
- » To receive tools, activities, new ideas, and resources you can use to enhance your workplace and personal success
- » To gain an awareness of your own EQ by taking the Bar-On Emotional Quotient Inventory (EQ-i) along with a one hour personal telephone coaching session (this is an option you may select upon registration)
